TEN HOSE COMPANIES AFTER LOCAL CONTRACT

Rapid Bidding Takes Place Before Council Tuesday Night

THOUSAND FEET NEEDED

Action Deferred Until Future Meeting--Long Alley People Seek Aid

Ten representatives of as many fire hose companies were present Tuesday evening at a meeting of Charleroi council when the matter of letting the contract for 1,000 feet of hose for the borough was taken up. Council found out all about hose and ended up by postponing final action on the contract until some future date.

Each representative of the ten was given ten five minutes to exhaust his vocabulary on the subject of fire hose and to tell how much better his samples were than all the rest put together. After the time had been taken up and volumous information given council deliberated carefully, then decided to table the matter.

Chief J. M. Fleming of the fire department and one or two other members were present and made talks. When the matter will be taken up again is a question. Probably it will be soon as the fire department claims itself to be in need of hose. It is urged that the underwriters department, which recently had an inspector here is likely to condemn those which will mean a raise in penalty rate.

Citizens owning property along Long alley presented requests that the alley be paved or at the least improved between Second and Fourth street. The matter was placed in the hands of the street committee for investigation and for action.

A representative of the Bell Telephone company was present asking that the company be allowed to locate five new poles in the hill district. Permission was granted.

Washington county will pay $2,500 towards the new armory to be erected at Monongahela. Treasurer W. S. Shepler of the armory fund received a check for that amount this week from the county commissioners and placed it on deposit. The site has been selected for the armory and the plans prepared.

Will Try Gas Electric Car

Pittsburg and Lake Erie to Experiment With New Kind of Motive Power

It is not unlikely that some time in the not far distant fuure people living along the Pittsburg and Lake Erie Railroad on the east side of the Monongahela river will witness the first appearance of a gas-electric car in this valley which is to be experimented with. Should the experiment succeed and the system be installed, it may be the opening wedge for the electrifying of the local section of the railroad in Pittsburg, the dream for years of local residents The contract for the new car has been awarded to the General Electric company. In appearance it is stated the car will be somewhat like those to be seen in New York city. The first try-out of the car it is undersood will be either on the line to Beaver Falls or else up the Monongahela river.

READY FOR BIDS SOON ON SCHOOL

Architect Cooper Getting Final Plans in Raediness

BOARD MEETING HELD

Will be in Session Again Tonight to Discuss New Building Matters

Architect A. P. Cooper of Uniontown, who is the designer of the plans for the new Charleroi school building was in Charleroi Tuesday night to attend the regular meeting of the school board. The plans for the new structure were carefully gone over. Architect Cooper will return tonight when a meeting will be held.

It is probable that the plans and specifications will be ready for the letting of the contract within three weeks. The Charleroi Lumber company which has the contract for excavation and stone work has four teams engaged on the work of excavation at the present time.

The schools are now operating in good shape under the superintendency of Prof. T. L. Pollock. This week is the third week of school. The enrollment has been growing since the opening day. Reports will be issued probably in a few days regarding the enrollment thus far.

RAILROAD RATE WAR FOR CONNELLSVILLE

Rumored That Three Railroads Will Stir Up Muddle in Fight to Get Trade--Two-Cent Rate May be Result

Recent rumors that the Baltimore and Ohio and probably the Pennsylvania railroads soon may reduce passenger rates and perhaps freight tariffs in an effort to obtain business in competition with the new Western Maryland, led to predictions based on Cumberland reports, that a rate war may be waged in the Connellsville region says the Connellsville Courier. Relations between the roads so far, have been friendly, and, although the efforts to get business likely will be keen, it is considered unlikely that ill feeling will arise.

Uncomfirmed reports received recently were that the Western Maryland will offer as a tangible inducement to the traveling public a 2 cent passenger rate.

Ten freight trains are operated every day—five east and five west. The company has been offered 10,000 cars of through freight monthly by the Pittsburg & Lake Erie Railroad, which offer it was obliged to decline for the present. This is one instance of many where the new road finds itself handicapped with its single-track syestem

It is considered probable the line will be paralleled early next spring from Connellsville to Sand Patch, from which station it is now double-tracked to Cumberland. Excavation of the roadbed for the second track will be completed between Rockwood and Garrett this fall, and the work will probably be resumed early next spring

SEALERS OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES MEET

County Officials From All Parts of State Listen to Definition of Duties by State Executives--Are to Organize

A permanent organization will be formed at Harrisburg today by city and county sealers of weights and measures of Pennsylvania, who met yesterday in conference. The first session was largely devoted to discussion of the problems attending the work of the sealers, after which committees were named.

James Sweeney, chief of the Pennsylvania Bureau of Standards, was chairman of the meeting and addresses were made by Governor Tener, who praised the work of the sealers and their efforts to obtain for the people the equivalent of the money they pay; Secretary of Internal Affairs Henry Houck and L. A. Fisher, chief of the National Bureau of Standards at Washington. D. C.

Mr. Houck's address contained the fact that the sealers of the various counties and cities had in one year tested 47,967 weights or measures and had found 11,788 false. The State bureau has standarized 1,264 pieces.

O. Evans Mikesell, sealer of weights and measures for Washington county, is in attendance, and is talked of prominently as a candidate for president of the new State organization.

FIGHT IS STARTED

Protests Entered Against Extension of Washington Lines

OCCASIONS MUCH TALK

President J. D. Moffat of Washington and Jefferson College and representatives of the State Highway Department and the Pittsburg Railways company entered protests at Harrisburg against the granting of an extension to the charter of the of the Washigton Traction company for the construction of 13 miles of street railway at Washington. The hearing was held Tuesday before Corporation Clerk John F. Whitworth.

President Moffat declared that cars run on the proposed route would pass buildings used for laboratory purposes, and that the vibrations of the passing trolleys would destroy delicate scientific instruments.

Deputy State Highway Commissioner Joseph W. Hunter objected on the ground that it was proposed to occupy portions of State road without permission having been granted by the State Highway Department. Attorney H. M. Bingham's objection was that the proposed route would interfere with present lines. No decision was given.

CHARLEROI TOURISTS RETURN FROM ABROAD

VISITED MANY PLACES

Venice Finest, Paris Grandest City of Old Time Countries--Climb Alps

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Might, John Monier and Mrs. Mary Aurenche, constituting a party of Charleroi folks who spent the summer abroad have returned. John Monier and his sister, Mrs. Aurenche returned Tuesday from St. Etienne, France. Mr. and Mrs. Might arrived this morning from New York where they spent three days.

Every member of the party reports a fine trip. Mr. Monier and Mrs. Aurenche visited wholly in France, spending nearly all the time at the place of their birth, St. Etienne. Mr. and Mrs. Might visited in France, England, Ireland, Germany, Switzerland, Belgium and Italy.

Mr. and Mrs. Might saw many of the fine sights in the countries they visited. The took a trip along the German Rhine, one of the most noted rivers of the world and enjoyed the beautiful, rugged scenery fronting its banks. They went to Switzerland, and climbed the Alps mountains, stopping at Lucerne and other noted points in that country. From Switzerland they went to Italy.

Northern Italy, which Mr. Might pronounces the most up-to-date of all the old time European countries, proved one of the most entertaining in the way of sightseeing. "Venice," says Mr. Might, "is the finest city we saw in the old world. The grand old sights to be seen and the streets of water make it a place never to be forgotten once one sees it. Everybody goes in for music in all the European countries we visited. Everything is art. The Italians on the gondolas peacefully making their way through the Venetian streets sing grand opera the way Americans sing rag-time. In every cafe or every restaurant there is on orchestra or a band."

Mr. Might described in some detail his visit to Paris, which he says is probably the grandest city of Europe as in another classification Venice is the finest. London, England and the numerous points of interest in the British Isles proved diverting.

Claim Negro Is Assailant

Police Say Spinster Attacked by Burglar Recognizes Suspect

George Davis, a negro aged 26 of Brownsville arrested Monday in connection with the attack upon and serious injury of Miss Margaret Hackney, a wealthy spinster of East Millsboro, Saturday night, by a burglar, is said to have been identified Tuesday by Miss Hackney as the man who compelled her to give him money.

Mrs. Ellen Black, a negress of Brownsville, with whom Davis boarded, and who was bound and gagged as she lay on a couch in the home of Miss Hackney, is said by the police to have admitted that she was implicated in the affair and to have asserted that Davis was the man who attacked Miss Hackney. Miss Hackney's condition is serious.

SKULL IS FRACTURED

Companion Painfully, Though Not Seriously Injured--Dashed Against Fence

In a runoff near Ten Mile Tuesday afternoon Miss Margaret E. Garrett, a well known resident of southern Washington county was almost instantly killed while Miss Lucy Loar was painfully, although not seriously injured. The real details of the fatal accident may never be known as Miss Loar, the only living witness is unable to give any connected accounts of what occurred.

Miss Garrett resided with her niece, Mrs. Bessie Good of Ten Mile About 3:30 in the afternoon she with Miss Loar, a daughter of Len Loar of near Ten Mile, started to drive to the home of Clint Lewis, near the North Ten Mile church to pick elderberries. Near the Enoch farm about a mile from North Ten Mile Baptist church the horse frightened for some unknown reason and bolted. Apparently the buggy colluded with a fence post at the cross roads and both women were thrown out, the horse going on and being caught about a mile from the scene.

A NATIONAL PERIL.

That the prevalent idea in many quarters that the salvation of our country depends upon the executive rule of one man is a national peril, is emphasized by Harper's Weekly, which says:

"A third term is in itself dangerous, but if Mr. Roosevelt is permitted to enjoy a third term the injury that will follow cannot be measured. It is conceivable that an emergency might arise which would warrant sweeping aside all precedent and the defiance of the unwritten law so as to continue in office the one man possessed of the peculiar qualities to enable them to meet the crises, a man of such proved integrity and unselfishness and patriotism that there would be no fear of his covertly seeking to establish a dynasty or to retain his power for life. There is no such present emergency to justify a departure from precident. Neither at home nor abroad does the Republic face danger. It is threatened neither by invasion nor domestic revolution, except that revolution which Mr. Roosevelt has for years endeavored to bring about by inciting class hatred and inflaming the idle, the dissolute, and the unworthy against the industrious and those endowed with grater capacity. There is no particular kind of work that Mr. Roosevelt can do better than any one else. He is not the exceptional man. He was given seven years in which to prove his worth, seven unusual years in which to demonstrate his courage, his honesty, his capacity as a leader, his statesmanship. Those seven years were seven years of dismal failure."

When any great number of people begin to think that the preservation of our form of government depends upon a single individual, we are perilously near a condition when a dictator might arise and be tolerated. No one man is essential to the conduct of our government, and for that reason the breaking of the third term precedent would be a national peril.

IT IS NECESSARY?

The arrest of "Gyp the Blood" and "Leftie Louie," crooks alleged to be connected with the Rosenthal murder in New York, has aroused widespread comment as to the extraordinary character of these men who compose the underworld of the great city of New York. There is nothing, however, unusual about this type, which is to be found everywhere, in various degrees of criminality. There is scarcely a town or community that does not have its gang that preys, men and youths who have no visible means of support, but who maintain a certain standing by gambling, betting and other questionable occupations, some of whom are sure to lapse into embezzlement, thievery, burglary and murder, sooner or later. New York, one of the largest cities in the world, has innumerable organized gangs in the underworld that prey, and the climax of one of the crimes committed through this agency has startled the world. Monongahela, at one time, with its Alcohol Gang, had as dangerous and active a bunch of criminals as ever infested New York. Before this gang was broken up Monongahela was worse criminally in this respect, proportionally, than New York. Even Charleroi has individuals who prey, who are well known to the police, and are always awaiting time and opportunity to get in their work.

Naturally, the first question that arises is, is it necessary to permit these individuals to tranquilly pursue their chosen profession—that of making a living off society without giving anything in return. Are the "Gyp the Bloods" and Leftie Louies" so essential to the well-being of society that they are left alone to ply their nefarious occupations until some startling crime is committed through their agency, which invariably follows as the night the day? By Detective W. J. Burns' famous process of elimination these characters can be readily sifted out in any community and they should be remorselessly prosecuted until they abandon their criminal ways and go to work. A secret service department should be maintained by the State Constabulary and its agents instructed to systamatically close up the secret poker joints and other rendezvous of the underworld that teach and foster crime. It is not necessary to maintain these schools of crime and vice that exist among the criminally idle which are found in every community. Society should act.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

"I took a 200 mile trip through West Virginia by auto recently," said C. E. VanVoorhis of the Elite Garage, "and I made the entire trip back to Charleroi without the slightest accident or delay. Within the borough limits, my machine sank axle deep in the mud on the Maple Creek road, where repairs are being made, and try my best, I could not get out. This was 2 o'clock in the morning and I remained until daylight, then went and got a team to haul the machine out.

"With that road torn up, and the naturally bad conditions of the Speers road it is practically impossible to drive in and out of Charleroi now, except by way of Monessen."

She was an attractive little bit of feminity dressed in the very newest mode but her nose was of an unwonted redness and she dabbed continually at her bloodshot eyes with the bit of filmy lace which she termed her handkerchief, says the Washington Reporter. She stepped up to the proprietor of a Main street store and in a somewhat thick voice said:

"I wad to loog at gombs."

"Certainly, madam" responded the shopman, "step right this way," and he escorted her to a seat in the shoe department and exhibited for her inspection an attractive array of overshoes of various designs.

The puzzled proprietor looked over his shelves and thought long and hard. Finally in a somewhat timorous manner he brought out a pair of old fashioned goloshes.

The wrath and embarrassment of the exasperated young woman was finally relieved when a clerk who has also suffered from hay fever stepped forward and remarked to the proprietor:

And the knowing youth was rewarded by a brilliant feminine smile which was somewhat spoiled by a sudden fit of sneezing.

UP THE RIVER

Miss Anne Weaver of Coal Centre aged 80 years, one of the best known and most highly respected residents of that place and vicinity died at her home Sunday morning at 6:30 o'clock. She had been in poor health for over two years and for the greater portion of this time had been an invalid. Funeral services were held at the late home Tuesday afternoon. The interment was in the Howe cemetery.

The London Bobby.

In humor, in urbanity, as in perfect control of his district, the London policeman is the nearest possible approach to perfection. To the stranger he seems the pompist of all the Londoners. The shop people in London are, in the average, both stupid and rude; the supposedly well bred people in Hyde park, if a hapless vagabond were to come to them for information, would be either insolent or unintelligible; the policeman, however, seems invariably polite, wonderfully well informed and furnished with English that is not nearly so atrociously cockney as that of those who fancy themselves his betters.—"Vagabond Journeys, the Human Comedy at Home and Abroad," by Percival Pollard.

An Explorer's Stratagem.

Sir Harry Johnston, the famous explorer, once escaped from a very tight corner in Africa by a queer stratagem. A score or two of murderous natives had surrounded his tent, into which before rushing it they sent an envoy. The envoy was told the smallpox was in the camp, and a wretched Albino was sent out as the awful example. In five minutes the scared tribesmen had vanished. As Sir Harry well knew, they feared the "white disease" more than all the inventions of Maxim.

Staying Greenhorn.

"Why did you tell the manager of that employment agency that you had just come over?" said one servant girl to another. "You didn't, you know. You have had three situations in New York."

"I know that," said the girl. "I pretended to be green so she would try harder to get me a good place. At most of these agencies the managers have green girls on their conscience. The sharks in the business, of course, will fleece them, but the average manager is sympathetic and gets them easy places to start with. I'll have a snap where I am going. The woman thinks I have just arrived and that she will have to break me in. Breaking in means that she will do half the work while I will just stand around and look on. It pays sometimes to be a greenhorn."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Impatience.

In all evils which admit a remedy impatience should be avoided because it wastes that time and attention in complaints which if properly applied might remove the cause.—Johnson.

DUTCH.

[illegible] Germans Who Came [illegible] in 1683 [illegible] called "Dutch." [illegible] are the descendants. Now [illegible] was first settled by the Dutch [illegible]

The first Germans came to this country in 1683 and settled at Germantown. It is estimated that the Germans and their descendants in Pennsylvania numbered 100,000 at the time of our revolution. The descendants of these are called the Pennsylvania Germans or Dutch. The word Dutch is a corruption of Deutsch, meaning German.

The early Germans were followers of Menno Simons, known as Mennonites. They were persecuted in their own country on account of their religious belief and when Penn offered religious liberty it was gladly accepted by them. The persecuted Germans came largely from the Rhenish palatinate, Wurtemberg, from the lower Rhine, Alsace, Saxony and Switzerland.

The southeastern counties of Pennsylvania, such as Lancaster, York, Berks and Lebanon, were chosen for settlement. These settlers spoke a variety of dialects, and, owing to segregation in religious communities, they clung to their mother tongue. English words have since crept in and as a result we have the somewhat picturesque language known as the "Pennsylvania Dutch." Their religious belief and their common interest have preserved this class with singular purity.—Philadelphia Ledger.

An Able Manager.

"He is a remarkably economical chap," said the senator. "He can make a dollar go further in a campaign than any man I know. They tell a story about him—a story that shows what a manager he is. It seems he went into a cigar store one day to get a light. Well, as he was lighting up a man entered and bought three five cent cigars. As soon as the man left our friend said quickly:

"'Those cigars are six for a quarter ain't they?'

"'Yes, sir,' said the salesman.

"Our friend laid down a dime.

"'Gimme,' he said, 'the other three then.'"—New York Tribune.

Plenty of Reason.

"I don't see why that tune haunts me constantly," complained a dull man who was always humming.

"Because you are forever murdering it!" came the quick reply from Foote.

Ignorance is a blank sheet on which we may write, but error is a scribbled one from which we must erase.

OLD SORES, PILES, BURNS AND SCALDS HEAL VERY QUICKLY

W. F. Hennings, and Piper Bros. sells an ointment called San Cura that surely does do anything it is advertised to do or money back.

Thos. F. McCauley, Coopertown, Pa., cut his finger—blood poison set in—arm swelled terribly—friends despaired—said arm must come off. San Cura Ointment drew out water and dark pus—agony ceased—arm and hand soon as good as ever.

It quickly draws out all poison from sores, fever sores, ulcers, boils, carbuncles, cuts, burns, scalds and bruises and heals without leaving a scar.

For itching, bleeding or protruding piles, nothing can equal it, while thousands of cases are recorded where eczema, tetter and salt rheum were cured in the shortest possible time. San Cura Ointment is 25 and 50 cents a jar.

Everybody should use San Cura Soap, it's antiseptic destroys all germ life, keeps the skin clear, soft and velvety, 25 cents. Thompson Medical Co., Titusville, Pa.

IMPROVEMENTS ARE STARTED AT CLAIRTON PLANT

Improvements involving the expenditure of over half a million dollars are now under way at the Clairton works of the Carnegie Steel company, the completion of which means the employment of several hundred additional skilled workmen and many laborers. The improvements include the construction of two mammoth open-hearth furnaces with a capacity of 60 tons and the necessary accessories and an emergency hospital. The furnaces are to be ready for operation by the beginning of 1913.

VARNISHING DAY.

When the hanging committee of the English Royal academy has completed the work of "hanging," the artists whose pictures are exhibited on the academy walls are forwarded a piece of pasteboard known as a "varnishing card." This card is the first intimation the artist receives that his picture has passed triumphantly through the processes of judging and "hanging," and it allows him to visit the academy on a particular day—"varnishing day"—just before the galleries are thrown open to the public. Hundreds of knights of the brush are to be found in the galleries of Burlington House on "varnishing day," and here and there are flights of steps and improvised platforms covered with artists putting the last loving touches to their canvases. Here, perched on the top rung of a pair of steps, is a young lady with smiling face scraping her picture with a palette knife and putting in fresh spots of paint occasionally, while on the floor at her feet is a young man whose features are the picture of misery, his eyes roaming toward the ceiling. His canvas is hopelessly skied, and he is silently abusing the members of the hanging committee for their lack of judgment.

"Varnishing day" brings many surprises to the exhibitors. One man will find his canvas wrongly named, and another, an impressionist, may be startled to discover that his "glorious sunset, over which he has taken so much pains, is upside down. And for the first time he realizes that an impressionist's pictures can be turned about any way without greatly endangering the effect.

Turner had one of his paintings hung upside down, and old academicians well remember that a little canvas, "A Sleeping Naiad," was once, owing to lack of space, placed on the wall in an upright position and renamed "The Waking Naiad."—National Magazine.

GAY OLD FASHIONS.

Compared with the gay apparel worn by the dandies of the past ages the youths of our time in the gayest of gay raiment make but a poor show.

The bishop of Ely in the fourteenth century had a change of raiment for every day in the year. The Earl of Northumberland boasted no less than sixty cloth of gold suits at this time.

In the time of Chaucer the men wore clothes as many colored as Joseph's coat, so that while one leg would be a blaze of crimson, the other would be tricked out in green, blue or yellow without any regard for harmony or contrast.

Even as late as the middle of the eighteenth century, a dandy would dress himself in a vivid green coat, a waistcoat of scarlet, yellow breeches and blue stockings.

And the gentleman of a few years later wore, among other vagaries, a coat of light green, with sleeves too small for the arms and buttons too big for the sleeves; a pair of fine Manchester breeches; checked silk stockings; a club of hair behind larger than the head which carried it; a hat not larger than a sixpence.

It was a common thing in the early part of the eighteenth century for a man of fashion to spend several hours daily in the hands of his valet. Among the many operations which took up this time was "the starching of the beard and the proper perfuming of the garments, the painting of the face and anointing with oils, tinctures, essences and pomatums."—London Standard.

TRAMPS OF THE SEA.

Their Work In Developing the Ocean Carrying Trade.

There are land tramps and sea tramps, but whereas the former lives by the labor of others, the world's business would be in great straits were the latter to be swept from the face of the ocean. While there have practically always been tramp ships since men have sailed the sea, it remained for the Yankee skippers to develop this phase of ocean carrying to its highest degree. Tramping on the ocean is only another name for trading, and many are the stories extant of Yankee skippers swapping beads, mirrors, calico, knives and other trifles for ivory in Africa, and for commodities equally as valuable in other lands.

The tramp steamship came into existence during the war between the states, and it is to this type of vessel that England primarily owes her supremacy on the sea, she having encouraged the building of tramps more than any other nation. In times of peace they add to her prosperity, and where they enjoy a subsidy, as they do in some instances, they are used as transports and other auxiliaries in times of war.

Next to England comes Norway as a nation which encourages sea tramps and as her maritime laws are more elastic than those of Great Britain many British tramps are sold to Norwegian owners, who make them pay after they have outlived their usefulness under the British flag.—Marine Journal.

The Difference.

A Good Eater.

When Gustavus of Sweden was besieging Prague a boor of extraordinary aspect gained admittance to his tent and offered by way of amusing his majesty to devour a large hog in his presence Old General Konigsmarck who was in attendance, at once suggested that the man with the Gargantuan appetite should be burned as a witch, whereupon the boor, whose feelings were hurt by this observation, exclaimed, "If your majesty will but make that old gentleman take off his sword and spurs I will eat him before I begin the pig" This was accompanied by such a "hideous expansion of the jaws and mouth" that the general, though he had given his "proofs" on many a field, turned pale and fled in continently to his tent

When Samuel S. Cotter was preaching in an old log schoolhouse in Johnson county, Missouri, in 1852, his congregation was quite small. He first played in professional company with Charleroi, being tried out as short-stop and failing to make good, then being shifted to the outfield. His hitting here was remarkable.

TEN HOSE COMPANIES AFTER LOCAL CONTRACT

Rapid Bidding Takes Place Before Council Tuesday Night

THOUSAND FEET NEEDED

Ten representatives of as many fire hose companies were present Tuesday evening at a meeting of Charleroi council when the matter of letting the contract for 1,000 feet of hose for the borough was taken up. Council found out all about hose and ended up by postponing final action on the contract until some future date.

Each representative of the ten was given ten five minutes to exhaust his vocabulary on the subject of fire hose and to tell how much better his samples were than all the rest put together. After the time had been taken up and volumous information given council deliberated carefully, then decided to table the matter.

Chief J. M. Fleming of the fire department and one or two other members were present and made talks. When the matter will be taken up again is a question. Probably it will be soon as the fire department claims itself to be in need of hose. It is urged that the underwriters department, which recently had an inspector here is likely to condemn those which will mean a raise in penalty rate.

Citizens owning property along Long alley presented requests that the alley be paved or at the least improved between Second and Fourth street. The matter was placed in the hands of the street committee for investigation and for action.

A representative of the Bell Telephone company was present asking that the company be allowed to locate five new poles in the hill district. Permission was granted.

Will Try Gas Electric Car

It is not unlikely that some time in the not far distant fuure people living along the Pittsburg and Lake Erie Railroad on the east side of the Monongahela river will witness the first appearance of a gas-electric car in this valley which is to be experimented with. Should the experiment succeed and the system be installed, it may be the opening wedge for the electrifying of the local section of the railroad in Pittsburg, the dream for years of local residents The contract for the new car has been awarded to the General Electric company. In appearance it is stated the car will be somewhat like those to be seen in New York city. The first try-out of the car it is undersood will be either on the line to Beaver Falls or else up the Monongahela river.

READY FOR BIDS SOON ON SCHOOL

Architect Cooper Getting Final Plans in Raediness

BOARD MEETING HELD

Will be in Session Again Tonight to Discuss New Building Matters

Architect A. P. Cooper of Uniontown, who is the designer of the plans for the new Charleroi school building was in Charleroi Tuesday night to attend the regular meeting of the school board. The plans for the new structure were carefully gone over. Architect Cooper will return tonight when a meeting will be held.

It is probable that the plans and specifications will be ready for the letting of the contract within three weeks. The Charleroi Lumber company which has the contract for excavation and stone work has four teams engaged on the work of excavation at the present time.

The schools are now operating in good shape under the superintendency of Prof. T. L. Pollock. This week is the third week of school. The enrollment has been growing since the opening day. Reports will be issued probably in a few days regarding the enrollment thus far.

RAILROAD RATE WAR FOR CONNELLSVILLE

Rumored That Three Railroads Will Stir Up Muddle in Fight to Get Trade--Two-Cent Rate May be Result

Recent rumors that the Baltimore and Ohio and probably the Pennsylvania railroads soon may reduce passenger rates and perhaps freight tariffs in an effort to obtain business in competition with the new Western Maryland, led to predictions based on Cumberland reports, that a rate war may be waged in the Connellsville region says the Connellsville Courier. Relations between the roads so far, have been friendly, and, although the efforts to get business likely will be keen, it is considered unlikely that ill feeling will arise.

Uncomfirmed reports received recently were that the Western Maryland will offer as a tangible inducement to the traveling public a 2 cent passenger rate.

Ten freight trains are operated every day—five east and five west. The company has been offered 10,000 cars of through freight monthly by the Pittsburg & Lake Erie Railroad, which offer it was obliged to decline for the present. This is one instance of many where the new road finds itself handicapped with its single-track system

It is considered probable the line will be paralleled early next spring from Connellsville to Sand Patch, from which station it is now double-tracked to Cumberland. Excavation of the roadbed for the second track will be completed between Rockwood and Garrett this fall, and the work will probably be resumed early next spring

County Officials From All Parts of State Listen to Definition of Duties by State Executives--Are to Organize

A permanent organization will be formed at Harrisburg today by city and county sealers of weights and measures of Pennsylvania, who met yesterday in conference. The first session was largely devoted to discussion of the problems attending the work of the sealers, after which committees were named.

James Sweeney, chief of the Pennsylvania Bureau of Standards, was chairman of the meeting and addresses were made by Governor Tener, who praised the work of the sealers and their efforts to obtain for the people the equivalent of the money they pay; Secretary of Internal Affairs Henry Houck and L. A. Fisher, chief of the National Bureau of Standards at Washington, D. C.

Mr. Houck's address contained the fact that the sealers of the various counties and cities had in one year tested 47,967 weights or measures and had found 11,788 false. The State bureau has standarized 1,264 pieces.

O. Evans Mikesell, sealer of weights and measures for Washington county, is in attendance, and is talked of prominently as a candidate for president of the new State organization.

Protests Entered Against Extension of Washington Lines

OCCASIONS MUCH TALK

President J. D. Moffat of Washington and Jefferson College and representatives of the State Highway Department and the Pittsburg Railways company entered protests at Harrisburg against the granting of an extension to the charter of the of the Washigton Traction company for the construction of 13 miles of street railway at Washington. The hearing was held Tuesday before Corporation Clerk John F. Whitworth.

President Moffat declared that cars run on the proposed route would pass buildings used for laboratory purposes, and that the vibrations of the passing trolleys would destroy delicate scientific instruments.

Deputy State Highway Commissioner Joseph W. Hunter objected on the ground that it was proposed to occupy portions of State road without permission having been granted by the State Highway Department. Attorney H. M. Bingham's objection was that the proposed route would interfere with present lines. No decision was given.

CHARLEROI TOURISTS RETURN FROM ABROAD

VISITED MANY PLACES

Venice Finest, Paris Grand-[illegible] Countries--Climb Alps

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Might, John Monier and Mrs. Mary Aurenche, constituting a party of Charleroi folks who spent the summer abroad have returned. John Monier and his sister, Mrs. Aurenche returned Tuesday from St. Etienne, France. Mr. and Mrs. Might arrived this morning from New York where they spent three days.

Every member of the party reports a fine trip. Mr. Monier and Mrs. Aurenche visited wholly in France, spending nearly all the time at the place of their birth, St. Etienne. Mr. and Mrs. Might visited in France, England, Ireland, Germany, Switzerland, Belgium and Italy.

Mr. and Mrs. Might saw many of the fine sights in the countries they visited. The took a trip along the German Rhine, one of the most noted rivers of the world and enjoyed the beautiful, rugged scenery fronting its banks. They went to Switzerland, and climbed the Alps mountains, stopping at Lucerne and other noted points in that country. From Switzerland they went to Italy.

Northern Italy, which Mr. Might pronounces the most up-to-date of all the old time European countries, proved one of the most entertaining in the way of sightseeing. "Venice," says Mr. Might, "is the finest city we saw in the old world. The grand old sights to be seen and the streets of water make it a place never to be forgotten once one sees it. Everybody goes in for music in all the European countries we visited. Everything is art. The Italians on the gondolas peacefully making their way through the Venetian streets sing grand opera the way Americans sing rag-time. In every cafe or every restaurant there is on orchestra or a band."

Mr. Might described in some detail his visit to Paris, which he says is probably the grandest city of Europe as in another classification Venice is the finest. London, England and the numerous points of interest in the British Isles proved diverting.

George Davis, a negro aged [illegible] Brownsville arrested Monday in connection with the attack upon and serious injury of Miss Margaret Hackney, a wealthy spinster of East Millsboro, Saturday night, by a burglar, is said to have been identified Tuesday by Miss Hackney as the man who compelled her to give him money.

Mrs. Ellen Black, a negress of Brownsville, with whom Davis boarded, and who was bound and gagged as she lay on a couch in the home of Miss Hackney, is said by the police to have admitted that she was implicated in the affair and to have asserted that Davis was the man who attacked Miss Hackney. Miss Hackney's condition is serious.

In a runoff near Ten Mile Tuesday afternoon Miss Margaret E. Garrett, a well known resident of southern Washington county was almost instantly killed while Miss Lucy Loar was painfully, although not seriously injured. The real details of the fatal accident may never be known as Miss Loar, the only living witness is unable to give any connected accounts of what occurred.

Miss Garrett resided with her niece, Mrs. Bessie Good of Ten Mile About 3:30 in the afternoon she with Miss Loar, a daughter of Len Loar of near Ten Mile, started to drive to the home of Clint Lewis, near the North Ten Mile church to pick elderberries. Near the Enoch farm about a mile from North Ten Mile Baptist church the horse frightened for some unknown reason and bolted. Apparently the buggy collided with a fence post at the cross roads and both women were thrown out, the horse going on and being caught about a mile from the scene.

A NATIONAL PERIL.

That the prevalent idea in many quarters that the salvation of our country depends upon the executive rule of one man is a national peril, is emphasized by Harper's Weekly, which says:

"A third term is in itself dangerous, but if Mr. Roosevelt is permitted to enjoy a third term the injury that will follow cannot be measured. It is conceivable that an emergency might arise which would warrant sweeping aside all precedent and the defiance of the unwritten law so as to continue in office the one man possessed of the peculiar qualities to enable them to meet the crises, a man of such proved integrity and unselfishness and patriotism that there would be no fear of his covertly seeking to establish a dynasty or to retain his power for life. There is no such present emergency to justify a departure from precident. Neither at home nor abroad does the Republic face danger. It is threatened neither by invasion nor domestic revolution, except that revolution which Mr. Roosevelt has for years endeavored to bring about by inciting class hatred and inflaming the idle, the dissolute, and the unworthy against the industrious and those endowed with grater capacity. There is no particular kind of work that Mr. Roosevelt can do better than any one else. He is not the exceptional man. He was given seven years in which to prove his worth, seven unusual years in which to demonstrate his courage, his honesty, his capacity as a leader, his statesmanship. Those seven years were seven years of dismal failure."

When any great number of people begin to think that the preservation of our form of government depends upon a single individual, we are perilously near a condition when a dictator might arise and be tolerated. No one man is essential to the conduct of our government, and for that reason the breaking of the third term precedent would be a national peril.

IT IS NECESSARY?

The arrest of "Gyp the Blood" and "Leftie Louie," crooks alleged to be connected with the Rosenthal murder in New York, has aroused widespread comment as to the extraordinary power of the underworld.

pose the underworld of the great city of New York. There is nothing, however, unusual about this type, which is to be found everywhere, in various degrees of criminality. There is scarcely a town or community that does not have its gang that preys, men and youths who have no visible means of support, but who maintain a certain standing by gambling, betting and other questionable occupations, some of whom are sure to lapse into embezzlement, thievery, burglary and murder, sooner or later. New York, one of the largest cities in the world, has innumerable organized gangs in the underworld that prey, and the climax of one of the crimes committed through this agency has startled the world. Monongahela, at one time, with its Alcohol Gang, had as dangerous and active a bunch of criminals as ever infested New York. Before this gang was broken up Monongahela was worse criminally in this respect, proportionally, than New York. Even Charleroi has individuals who prey, who are well known to the police, and are always awaiting time and opportunity to get in their work.

Naturally, the first question that arises is, is it necessary to permit these individuals to tranquilly pursue their chosen profession—that of making a living off society without giving anything in return. Are the "Gyp the Bloods" and Leftie Louies" so essential to the well-being of society that they are left alone to ply their nefarious occupations until some startling crime is committed through their agency, which invariably follows as the night the day? By Detective W. J. Burns' famous process of elimination these characters can be readily sifted out in any community and they should be remorselessly prosecuted until they abandon their criminal ways and go to work. A secret service department should be maintained by the State Constabulary and its agents instructed to systamatically close up the secret poker joints and other rendezvous of the underworld that teach and foster crime. It is not necessary to maintain these schools of crime and vice that exist among the criminally idle which are found in every community. Society should act.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

"I took a 200 mile trip through West Virginia by auto recently," said C. E. VanVoorhis of the Elite Garage, "and I made the entire trip back to Charleroi without the slightest accident or delay. Within the borough limits, my machine sank axle deep in the mud on the Maple Creek road, where repairs are being made, and try my best, I could not get out. This was 2 o'clock in the morning and I remained until daylight, then went and got a team to haul the machine out.

"With that road torn up, and the naturally bad conditions of the Speers road it is practically impossible to drive in and out of Charleroi now, except by way of Monessen."

She was an attractive little bit of feminity dressed in the very newest mode but her nose was of an unwonted redness and she dabbed continually at her bloodshot eyes with the bit of filmy lace which she termed her handkerchief, says the Washington Reporter. She stepped up to the proprietor of a Main street store and in a somewhat thick voice said:

"I wad to loog at gombs."

"Certainly, madam" responded the shopman, "step right this way," and he escorted her to a seat in the shoe department and exhibited for her inspection an attractive array of overshoes of various designs.

The puzzled proprietor looked over his shelves and thought long and hard. Finally in a somewhat timorous manner he brought out a pair of old fashioned goloshes.

The wrath and embarrassment of the exasperated young woman was finally relieved when a clerk who has also suffered from hay fever stepped forward and remarked to the proprietor:

And the knowing youth was rewarded by a brilliant feminine smile which was somewhat spoiled by a sudden fit of sneezing.

She had been in poor health for over two years and for the greater portion of this time had been an invalid. Funeral services were held at the late home Tuesday afternoon. The interment was in the Howe cemetery.

The London Bobby.

In humor, in urbanity, as in perfect control of his district, the London policeman is the nearest possible approach to perfection. To the stranger he seems the politest of all the Londoners. The shop people in London are, in the average, both stupid and rude; the supposedly well bred people in Hyde park, if a hapless vagabond were to come to them for information, would be either insolent or unintelligible; the policeman, however, seems invariably polite, wonderfully well informed and furnished with English that is not nearly so atrociously cockney as that of those who fancy themselves his betters.—"Vagabond Journeys, the Human Comedy at Home and Abroad," by Percival Pollard.

An Explorer's Stratagem.

Sir Harry Johnston, the famous explorer, once escaped from a very tight corner in Africa by a queer stratagem. A score or two of murderous natives had surrounded his tent, into which before rushing it they sent an envoy. The envoy was told the smallpox was in the camp, and a wretched Albino was sent out as the awful example. In five minutes the scared tribesmen had vanished. As Sir Harry well knew, they feared the "white disease" more than all the inventions of Maxim.

Playing Greenhorn.

"Why did you tell the manager of that employment agency that you had just come over?" said one servant girl to another. "You didn't, you know. You have had three situations in New York."

"I know that," said the girl. "I pretended to be green so she would try harder to get me a good place. Almost of these agencies the managers have green girls on their conscience. The sharks in the business, of course, will fleece them, but the average manager is sympathetic and gets them easy places to start with. I'll have a snap where I am going. The woman thinks I have just arrived and that she will have to break me in. Breaking in means that she will do half the work while I will just stand around and look on. It pays sometimes to be a greenhorn."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Impatience.

In all evils which admit a remedy impatience should be avoided because it wastes that time and attention in complaints which if properly applied might remove the cause.—Johnson.

... DUTCH.

... Who Came ... in 1632.

... Dutch are ... Germans. New York was first settled by the Dutch ...

The first Germans came to this country in 1682 and settled at Germantown. It is estimated that the Germans and their descendants in Pennsylvania numbered 100,000 at the time of our revolution. The descendants of these are called the Pennsylvania Germans or Dutch. The word Dutch is a corruption of Deutsch, meaning German.

The early Germans were followers of Menno Simons, known as Mennonites. They were persecuted in their own country on account of their religious belief and when Penn offered religious liberty it was gladly accepted by them. The persecuted Germans came largely from the Rhenish palatinate, Wurtemberg, from the lower Rhine, Alsace, Saxony and Switzerland.

The southeastern counties of Pennsylvania, such as Lancaster, York, Berks and Lebanon, were chosen for settlement. These settlers spoke a variety of dialects, and, owing to segregation in religious communities, they clung to their mother tongue. English words have since crept in and as a result we have the somewhat picturesque language known as the "Pennsylvania Dutch." Their religious belief and their common interest have preserved this class with singular purity.—Philadelphia Ledger.

An Able Manager.

"He is a remarkably economical chap," said the senator. "He can make a dollar go further in a campaign than any man I know. They tell a story about him—a story that shows what a manager he is. It seems he went into a cigar store one day to get a light. Well, as he was lighting up a man entered and bought three five cent cigars. As soon as the man left our friend said quickly:

"'Those cigars are six for a quarter, ain't they?'

"'Yes, sir,' said the salesman.

"Our friend laid down a dime.

"'Gimme,' he said, 'the other three then.'"—New York Tribune.

Plenty of Reason.

"I don't see why that tune haunts me constantly," complained a dull man who was always humming.

"Because you are forever murdering it!" came the quick reply from Foote.

Ignorance is a blank sheet on which we may write, but error is a scribbled one from which we must erase.

IMPROVEMENTS ARE STARTED AT CLAIRTON PLANT

Improvements involving the expenditure of over half a million dollars are now under way at the Clairton works of the Carnegie Steel company, the completion of which means the employment of several hundred additional skilled workmen and many laborers. The improvements include the construction of two mammoth open-hearth furnaces with a capacity of 60 tons and the necessary accessories and an emergency hospital. The furnaces are to be ready for operation by the beginning of 1913.

VARNISHING DAY.

When the hanging committee of the English Royal academy has completed the work of "hanging," the artists whose pictures are exhibited on the academy walls are forwarded a piece of pasteboard known as a "varnishing card." This card is the first intimation the artist receives that his picture has passed triumphantly through the processes of judging and "hanging," and it allows him to visit the academy on a particular day—"varnishing day"—just before the galleries are thrown open to the public. Hundreds of knights of the brush are to be found in the galleries of Burlington House on "varnishing day," and here and there are flights of steps and improvised platforms covered with artists putting the last loving touches to their canvases. Here, perched on the top rung of a pair of steps, is a young lady with smiling face scraping her picture with a palette knife and putting in fresh spots of paint occasionally, while on the floor at her feet is a young man whose features are the picture of misery, his eyes roaming toward the ceiling. His canvas is hopelessly skied, and he is silently abusing the members of the hanging committee for their lack of judgment.

"Varnishing day" brings many surprises to the exhibitors. One man will find his canvas wrongly named, and another, an impressionist, may be startled to discover that his glorious sunset, over which he has taken so much pains, is upside down. And for the first time he realizes that an impressionist's pictures can be turned about any way without greatly endangering the effect.

Turner had one of his paintings hung upside down, and old academicians well remember that a little canvas, "A Sleeping Naiad," was once, owing to lack of space, placed on the wall in an upright position and renamed "The Waking Naiad."—National Magazine.

GAY OLD FASHIONS.

Compared with the gay apparel worn by the dandies of the past ages the youths of our time in the gayest of gay raiment make but a poor show.

The bishop of Ely in the fourteenth century had a change of raiment for every day in the year. The Earl of Northumberland boasted no less than sixty cloth of gold suits at this time.

In the time of Chaucer the men wore clothes as many colored as Joseph's coat, so that while one leg would be a blaze of crimson, the other would be tricked out in green, blue or yellow without any regard for harmony or contrast.

Even as late as the middle of the eighteenth century, a dandy would dress himself in a vivid green coat, a waistcoat of scarlet, yellow breeches and blue stockings.

And the gentleman of a few years later wore, among other vagaries, a coat of light green, with sleeves too small for the arms and buttons too big for the sleeves; a pair of fine Manchester breeches; clocked silk stockings; a club of hair behind larger than the head which carried it; a hat not larger than a sixpence.

It was a common thing in the early part of the eighteenth century for a man of fashion to spend several hours daily in the hands of his valet. Among the many operations which took up this time was "the starching of the beard and the proper perfuming of the garments, the painting of the face and anointing with oils, tinctures, essences and pomatums.—London Standard.

TRAMPS OF THE SEA.

Their Work In Developing the Ocean Carrying Trade.

There are land tramps and sea tramps, but whereas the former lives by the labor of others, the world's business would be in great straits were the latter to be swept from the face of the ocean. While there have practically always been tramp ships since men have sailed the sea, it remained for the Yankee skippers to develop this phase of ocean carrying to its highest degree. Tramping on the ocean is only another name for trading, and many are the stories extant of Yankee skippers swapping beads, mirrors, calico, knives and other trifles for ivory in Africa, and for commodities equally as valuable in other lands.

The tramp steamship came into existence during the war between the states, and it is to this type of vessel that England primarily owes her supremacy on the sea, she having encouraged the building of tramps more than any other nation. In times of peace they add to her prosperity, and where they enjoy a subsidy, as they do in some instances, they are used as transports and other auxiliaries in times of war.

Next to England comes Norway as a nation which encourages sea tramps, and as her maritime laws are more elastic than those of Great Britain, many British tramps are sold to Norwegian owners, who make them pay after they have outlived their usefulness under the British flag.—Marine Journal.

Where Did They Put It?

Yeast—When they do housecleaning at home I have the greatest trouble in finding anything. Crimsonbeak—Me too. They cleaned house at my place the other day, and when I get home, do you know, I couldn't find the keyhole for the longest time.—Yonkers Statesman.

The Difference.

"Who is the more contented—a man with a million dollars or a man with six daughters?"

"The man with six daughters. The man with the million wants more."

The arrow of sarcasm are barbed with contempt. It is the sneer in the satire or ridicule that galls and wounds.—W. Gladden.

A Good Eater.

When Gustavus of Sweden was besieging Prague a boor of extraordinary aspect gained admittance to his tent and offered, by way of amusing his majesty, to devour a large hog in his presence. Old General Konigsmarck, who was in attendance, at once suggested that the man with the Gargantuan appetite should be burned as a witch, whereupon the boor, whose feelings were hurt by this observation, exclaimed, "If your majesty will but make that old gentleman take off his sword and spurs I will eat him before I begin the pig." This was accompanied by such a "hideous expansion of the jaws and mouth" that the general, though he had given his "proofs" on many a field, turned pale and fled incontinently to his tent.

An Odd Moorish Custom.

As a people the Moors are already well inclined to anything that gilds life. A correspondent says: "Nothing delights them more as a means of agreeably spending an hour or two than squatting on their heels in the streets or on some door stoop, gazing at the passersby, exchanging compliments with their acquaintances. Native 'swells' consequently promenade with a piece of felt under their arms on which to sit when they wish."

Browning.

Browning had completed a whole volume of verse by the time he was twelve, but his earliest artistic effort was a painting of a cottage and rocks, which he painted at the age of two in lead pencil and black currant jam juice.

A Ghost Story.

A London daily tells a short modern ghost story. A man was traveling on a northbound train out of London. Opposite him was a silent stranger, his only companion. Between London and Derby no word passed. Then, as the train drew out of Derby, he said pleasantly, "Good line, this, sir, eh?" The stranger replied: "I think it's a beastly bad line. I was killed on it two years ago."

He Shouldn't.

A man with a donkey for sale, hearing that a friend wanted to buy one, sent him the following, written on a postal card:

"Dear Jack, if you are looking for a really good donkey, please don't forget me."—Exchange.

His Retirement.

Friend—I haven't seen you for some time. Poet—No. Fact is I have become a good deal of a recluse lately. Friend—I feared so. How much do you owe?

He that speaks of things that do not concern him shall hear of things that will not please him.—Arabian Proverb.

Still At the Same Place.

In the Limerick Advertisements in the Mail yesterday it was made to appear that Stewart's Millinery had been moved to McKean avenue. This is a mistake as the store is still on Fallowfield avenue where an attractove line of Fall Millinery is being shown at the opening today.

Frank Berton.

Frank Berton, aged 13 months, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Berton of 922 Meadow avenue died Tuesday at 12 o'clock noon. The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Futility of Education.

An eminent physician, at a recent convention of railway surgeons in Philadelphia, said of a safety device that has averted many railway accidents:

"The advantage of this device is now almost universally recognized. Indeed, the railroader who disputes its advantages is as antiquated as the old resident who said:

"'Education be hanged. That's young Bill Smithers took an engineerin' course in a correspondence school and then put up a sign on his carriage house and hadn't no better sense than to spell "carriage" "garage."'"—Exchange.

He Aroused Them.

When Samuel S. Colber was preaching in an old log schoolhouse in Johnson county, Missouri, in 1852, his congregation was quite small. One Sunday all were sitting at the desks forward near the puncheon floor. The sermon was monotonous and the old log seats had no backs. Observing the sleepy, downcast look of the congregation, the minister woke them up by shouting, "Arouse, heaven is not under the floor!"

Quite Businesslike.

He had written to the magazine editor's daughter asking if she could return his love.

"How careless of him!" she said, throwing the epistle in the wastebasket. "He should have inclosed return postage."—Philadelphia Record.

Her Pertinent Query.

"Mother," asked the little one on the occasion of a number of guests being present at dinner, "will the dessert hurt me or is there enough to go round?"—Sacred Heart Review.

Answering Her Father.

"Could you support my daughter in the style to which she has been accustomed?"

"I have never tried such rigid economy, sir."—Life.

Of all persecutions, that of calumny is the most intolerable.—Hazlitt.

BABE UNHURT WHEN RUN OVER BY THE WHEELS OF BUGGY

To be run over by a heavy buggy and not be injured at all beyond a slight bruise was the fate of the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Chester today about noon. The buggy of the Chester's was near Second street, the baby and its mother being in the buggy. When the latter reached for the lines, the horse started away. The child was joulted from its seat and plunged beneath the wheels which passed over the upper part of its body. The horse was stopped by Mr. Chester. The babe was taken to Dr. McKay's office but no serious hurts could be found.

"PETE" KNICELY PLAYING GREAT GAME WITH CINCY

One of the most familiar names during the closing days of the season in the Cincinnati National League lineup is "Pete" Knicely, the Rices Landing boy who is playing middle field. Knicely is hitting like a demon and playing the game in a way that betokens a lost job for somebody else. Knicely for the last two years was a member of the Wheeling team in the Central league. He first played in professional company with Charleroi, being tried out as shortstop and failing to make good, then being shifted to the outfield. His hitting here was remarkable.

BEARISHNESS OF HUSBAND GETS HIM IN TROUBLE

Just out from jail on a surety of the peace charge preferred by his wife, John Kazahuba of Charleroi is in a way to do the "out again," "in again" performance. His wife says he came home and acted very bearish. Such bearishness became a bore she affirms until she went to Justice of the Peace Rice to swear out another warrant against him charging threats were made by him against her physical welfare.
